Two Men Hanged for One Man's Crime-Even a Mother Deceived by a Fellow Pre tending to be her Long-Lost Son.

tending to be her Long-Lost Son.

Prom the Cincinnati Commercial, Ang. 3.

People who imagined that they had heard the last of the famous Tichborne case, in which a vulgar butcher laid claim to one of the largest estates and noblest titles of England, have been undeceived. The claimant, so far from being crushed out by the evidence at the protracted trial, the result of which was to bind the so-called Roger Tichborne over to stand his trial for perjury, has now taken to a new rôle. He has been for months engaged in the dotation business on a large scale, and the Tichborne claimant's fund has been steadily swelling from the profuse contributions of the credulous running all the way up from sixpence each to fifty pounds sterling. This prodigal bestowal of funds is to aid the claimant in defending the suit against him for perjury, and in proving his title to the Tichborne estates.

THE WRONG MAN HANGKD.

THE WRONG MAN HANGED.

Aside from the romantic elements in this case and the always ready popular sympathy for one in humble life who claims to have been kept out of his own and is suing for it, the notable point is that it furnishes one of the most remarkable cases of disputed personal identity on record. Such cases always possess an interest for the public. The annals of crime furnish many instances in which the identity of persons arrested and charged with offence has been proved by apparently conclusive testimony, yet the persons so proved guilty have afterward been found wholly innocent, and the witnesses all mistaken in the man. In 1798 a gentleman named Lesurques was tried, convicted, and hanged at Paris for highway robbery, no less than four witnesses testifying to his identity. Other witnesses were brought forward to prove an alibi, but one of these having been detected in a falsity, the jury refused to believe all, and brought the prisoner in guilty. The young man went to the scaffold protesting his innocence. Four years afterward the real criminal, one Duboscq, was arrested, and found to possess a marvellous personal likeness to Lesurques. Evidence of a conclusive character was produced against him and he was hanged, an accomplice testifying to his guilt and to the entire innocence of Lesurques.

A YOUNG MAN'S ESCAPE. THE WRONG MAN HANGED.

In 1845 a singular case of mistaken identity occurred in a trial at Lowell. Massachusetts. Some wretch had assaulted little girls picking berries in the fields near that city, and a young man was arrested two weeks after. A Mr. Houghton and his wife, who had ran to the rescue of the girls on hearing their screams, swore positively that the prisoner was the same man who had run away in the bushes at the time of the assault. The two girls were taken separately into a room, and each of them pointed out the prisoner as the fellow who committed the assault upon them. Other witnesses, to the number of ten fin all, swore to his identity with a man whom they had seen on the day before the crime near the spot. On the other hand, the prisoner brought six unimpeachable witnesses who testified positively that they were with him in remote town in New Hampshire at the very time the assault on the girls was committed. This proved divin together with the good character remote town in New Hampshire at the very time the assault on the girls was committed. This proved alibi, together with the good character of the young man charged, secured his acquittal, the counsel for the Government admitting the alibi to have been clearly made out. But the remarkable resemblance of the prisoner to the villain who had committed the crime, and the fact that the witnesses for the Government who identified him, were all mistaken, caused the fact that the witnesses for the Government whi identified him were all mistaken, caused the Judge who tried the case to remark that it was almost sufficient to shake all confidence in hu

ASTONISHING FALSE PRETENCE.

A case more nearly resembling the Thebborne claimant, being that of a lost son returning to his parents house, and recognized and believed in as their true zon, while all the time an impostor, occurred at Bangor, Maine, in 1894. The claimant in this case was a young man 24 years of age, named Luther Hause, a wild fellow, son of Luther Hause of Troy, Maine, who had worked at Bangor for two or three years had you have got a to make the control of the con

Sr. Sett Hause of the case. But the trial peared at the trial, and there recognized the prisoneras his son.

That was the end of the case. But the trial created unexampled interest; over 400 persons were present, and apparently the majority of them were in favor of Luther, believing him to be the long-lost boy Rowland. But the Judge was too close-sighted not to give its due weight to such positive evidence of non-identity, and sustained the warrant. The sovereign mob, on the adjournment of the court, hustled the prisoner out of the way, and although he was afterward tried and found guility of procuring money on false pretenses, it was shown that Esquire Hause and his wife, who had so credulously believed in his identity with their lost son (afterward found in California), were much to blame for suffering themselves to be so easily duped.

-The intense hardness of black, unclearable diamonds, which are used in boring machines and for dressing milistones, is such that a single one has been employed for more than a year in dressing a pai of French burr miliatones daily, without perceptible wear or diminution of cutting power. The application of the diamonds to boring and drilling is due to a Swiss engineer, M. Leschot.

The year seems to be a most unusually not one everywhere. In India the heat has been in-tolerable, the thermometer in stations like Secunderabad-a hot place always-marking occasionally 107 deg. and 103 deg. for fifteen continuous days. In Faris old residents declare that they are grilling, and can only live by bathing; from Brussels we hear of 95 deg. in the shade, and in London it has been 85 deg., while the water in the public baths, without any aid from furnaces, has been 76 deg.

"What's the matter," asked the donor; "Isn't this good bread?" "Yes, the bread's good enough, "said the beggar. "Well, isn't the butter good, too?" "Yes, I've no fault to find with the butter," "Well, then, what is the matter?" "I don't like the way it's spread on," growled the fastidious mendicant.

—The Paducah News tells this story, for the truth of which it vouches: A professional gentle man, well known in this city, had not seen his son for a long period of time, owing to the fact that the latter re tired to bed ere the former returned home, and in the morning the father always left before the son got out o bed. One morning the lady of the house managed to get the father and son together at the breakfast table, and by way of a joke remarked: "Son, let me introduce you to your father." "How do you do, father," said the hopeful; "I don't remember ever having met you be-fore, but I have heard ma speak of you."

—The unpleasant odor produced by perspiration is frequently the source of vexation to persons who are subject to it. Nothing is simpler than to remove this odor much more effectually than by the application of such cosly orguents and perfumes as are in use. It is only necessary to procure some compound spirits of ammonia and place about two tablespoonfuls in a basin of water. Weaking the face, hands, and arms with this leaves the skin as clean and sweet as one could wish. The wash is perfectly harmless, and very cheap. It is recommended on the authority of an excheap. Suddenly they remembered that a man had been seen sitting on the barrel immediately after the stamp was pasted on, and on finding that gentleman and looking under the tail of his coat the mystery was solved. After some trouble the stamp was transferred from the innocen man to the barrel, and the excitement subsided.

—There is a horrid thing in Nashville. It is a white "something," which glides through a certain ravine near the city from nine P. M. to early morning, it has been repeatedly chased, both by boys and police-men, but manages to elude capture—how we are not told. The negroes are greatly excited by its appearance. They declare it to be the ghost of a colored woman who was burned to death last fail. A negress living near the ravine says that two headless persons come to her house repeatedly and dance a demoniac waltz, which results in overturning all her furniture. Two colored women who went by the haunted spot about midnight saw the ghost, and were so terrified that they run half a mile. One of them is not expected to survive the fright.
